GONZALO ARIJON'S AWARD-WINNING DOCUMENTARY
 "STRANDED: THE ANDES PLANE CRASH SURVIVORS"
 TO AIR NATIONALLY
 ON THE PBS SERIES "INDEPENDENT LENS" ON TUESDAY, MAY 19, 2009

Eloquently Told by Those Who Survived, Film is a Remarkable Testament to the Human Spirit

(San Francisco, CA) —In December 1972, the world was shocked by the miraculous story of sixteen young men -- rugby players from Uruguay -- who went to extraordinary measures to survive 72 days after their plane crashed high in snowy peaks of the Andes. It's one of the great survival stories of all time, and now, 35 years later, director Gonzalo Arijon – who was a childhood friend of several of the young men -- has carefully crafted this compelling documentary from the amazingly eloquent and poignant recollections of the sixteen out of 45 passengers who survived. From the joy these young, handsome, middle-class students felt at the prospect of a trip away from home, to their teenage hi-jinks aboard the plane, through the crash and the panoply of emotions that followed as hope of rescue slowly dissolved into despair. After ten days in the freezing, unforgiving conditions, consuming little more than toothpaste and cigarettes, those that remained alive learned that the search for survivors had been called off. From that moment on, inspired by faith, a powerful sense of brotherhood, and the indomitable will to survive, they banded together, refusing to surrender to death. Their ultimate decision – to eat the flesh of those that did not survive – shocked the world but kept them alive. For the first time onscreen, these thoughtful and heroic men discuss what they did and why. STRANDED will air on the Emmy and Peabody-Award winning PBS series Independent Lens, hosted by Terrence Howard, PN Tuesday, May 19, 2009 at 10PM (check local listings.)

-More-

Director Arijon goes beyond the lurid tale of cannibalism – an act that the survivors movingly compare to Christ’s communion with his disciples -- to discover the essence of this extraordinary human drama. Thirty-five years later, the survivors and their children revisit the crash site, now known as the Valley of Tears. Recovered photos and footage of their rescue illuminate the interviews with a powerful immediacy, creating a profound, powerful and ultimately inspiring look at the overwhelming human desire to live.

To learn more about the film, visit the STRANDED interactive companion website (pbs.org/stranded) which features detailed information on the film, including an interview with the filmmaker and links and resources pertaining to the film’s subject matter. The site also features a Talkback section for viewers to share their ideas and opinions, preview clips of the film, and more.
